TERRIBLE SCENES ON BURNING SHIP

BEAT OFF THE WOMEN.

Officers of Ill-Fated Steamer Behave Splendidly But Their Men Acted in a Brutal Manner.

London, Eng., Oct. 13. The first survivors' story of the tragedy of the burned liner Volturno, in which 136 men, women and children died, is being told.

The survivor is Walter Trentepohl, a German steerage passenger, who was picked up by the Cunarder as he floated near where she was standing by the Volturno, with a life belt about him. His account tells in simple, terse, direct fashion a dreadful narrative of men gone mad, of cowardice, and beast-like fighting to escape; of death by fire and by drowning, of the black terror that overcame almost all; of the bravery of the officers; of destruction that overtook five boats through being crushed against the side of the ship when safety was just beyond; of the seperation of men from women and children so that the latter might be saved; of the awful fight for the boats when men of the crew beat off mothers with babes in their arms, and of his own thrilling escape.

The story was obtained just before the survivor lapsed into unconsciousness from pneumonia caused by his long exposure in the water.

His narrative was pieced together by Arthur Spurgeon a Carmania passenger who talked with the incoherent and sometimes delirious victim who spoke in broken English before the illness brough insensibility. And the statement is amplified by a personal report from Mr. Spurgeon who is booked on the Carmania's list as being from New York.

Mr. Spurgeon describes graphically the dash of the Cunarder on the rescue mission and the frightful sight that was revealed when the wind tore away the curtain of black smoke that disclosed the ship being consumed by flames with those left aboard her huddled together on the stern.

This grim chapter came by the same medium that kept the record from being blacker—the wireless. The Carmania, due in Queenstown in the morning found sea too rought to stop there, she is proceeding directly to Liverpool. To end the agony of suspense, her captain sent Trintepohl's and Spurgeon's story ashore by radiograph.

Trintepohl, who had been employed at Barcelona, Spain, took a third class passage on the Volturno from Rotterdam,to obtain a position offered him at New York.

"All went well, sad Trintepohl, "until 6 o'clock Thursday morning, when the first alarm sounded.

"We were aroused and told to go on deck as fire had broken out in the hold. On assembling, life belts were handed around,and wuch time was occupied in fastening them.

"We were told that the fire might soon being quenched, but the captain thought it wise for all to have belts as a precaution.

"The fire frightened the children, who cried bitterly. There were many babies in arms.

"The fire grew worse. We saw things blazing down below. About 10 o'clock there was a croy to 'lower the boats.'

"The captain behaved splendidly, so did the officers, who were English. I am sorry to say the crew who were Germans and Belgians, behaved very badly.

"The people rushed about wildly, and the crew seemed to think they ought to have first place, and instead of quieting the passengers they made the panic worse.

"The first officer took charge of the first boat, but, though he wanted the women and children saved first,a majority of those who entered the boat were members of the crew.

"This boat was smashed against the ship's side as it was being lowered. Jus as it reached the water it broke in two and all were drowned.

"Meanwhile attempts were made to lower the second boat. I cannot say who was in charge of this, but I do know that after the chief steward ha thrown provisions in he jumped in himself.

"There were more men than women and children in this boat, which did not go down, for it was broken against the ship and all were thrown out and drowned.

"These two boats were amidship. Three other boats were put out aft. The fourth officer was in one of them, but I cannot say which one.

"All was confusion. The ropes broke and the occupants were thrown into the water and drowned or killed.

"When the captain saw what had happened he cut the tackle of the other boats so that they could not be launched.

"We were so glad when we saw the Carmania coming for we said: 'Now we shall all be saved"

"The firemen rushed up from below and refused to go back. The captain drew his revolver and drove them below but soon after, as the fire was spreading, they were oblidged to abandon their engines.

"As soon as the Carmania was sighted the captain made all the women and children to one side, and the men to the other side.He had been compelled to leave the bridge and go aft because it was too hot. Women wept, shrieked, laughed and became hysterical.

"We had not thought of food, but in the afternoon we considered it better to get something and went to the kitchens, which we found deserted, made coffee and helped ourselves to biscuit and beef. But most of the passengers refused to eat."

DR. WILEY'S ADDRESS.

Speaker Makes Practical Suggestions by Which Man's Mission in Earth Might be Lengthened.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, formerly of the Agricultural Department, delivered an interesting and practical address in the M. E. Church South yesterday. The subject of his discussion was on the proper rearing of children. He based his remarks on Ecclesiastes vii., 17—"Wh yshouldst thou die before thy time?"

During his address Dr. Wiley said his mission was not on the lines of most pulpit orators. They labored to get the human race nto heaven. His object was to keep the people on earth as long as possible. The average life of man at present is 45 years;he saw no reason why it could not be extended to 90 years. A large percentage of babes, the doctor said, die in infancy, and he thought by proper safeguards this terrible mortality could be minimized. The speaker made many practical suggestions by which he believed the ravages of disease could be lessened, and said that, under modern treatment, maladies which in bygone years were so often fatal or which were the cause of prolonged and dangerous convalescenee, were no longer dreaded.

The doctor referred to the overcrowded conditions in large cities,and said that pople should endeavor to live as much as possible outdoors, where the pure air of heaven can be breathed. Houses with many windows and doors and with lots on every side were of the sanitary patterns that should be erected.

CONGRESS AND REBATE REPEAL

Democratic Leaders Averse to Taking Initiative in Matter.

AMENDMENTS FEARED

President Expected to Take First Step inTrouble Over Five Per Cent. Clause.

Washington, Oct. 13.—The situation with respect to the 5 per cent differential in favor of goods shipped into this country in American vessels continues to be badly mixed.

House and Senate Democratic leaders will not take the initiative for repeal. They will nsist on the President, if he wants the clause repealed, after he suported it, and, in fact, urged it, now coming out an dasking repeal, in a special message. Otherwise, they will let executive officials and the courts wrestle with it.

State and Treasury officials think the Attorney General will uphold their view of the provision. This view is that if the 5 per cent discount is given to goods bought in on American vessels it must be allowed with respect to shipments by the vessels of all the great maritime nations with which this nation has commercal treaties.

The effect of such interpretation would be to scale down the tariff revenues by about $10,000,000, unless the Unted States chose to abrogate most of its commercial treaties.

Whichever way the clause is interpreted it is troublesome. Still, there is little real indication of repeal.

One reason which House and Senate leaders do not relish an effort to pass a joint resolution repealing the provision, is that if such a resolution is brought up, all kinds of tariff amendments can be offered. This would result, or might result, in a long renewal of tariff discussion, especially in the Senate.

OPEING OF FOOTBALL SEASON.

Cardinals Win First Game by Score 52 to 0.

A tingle admiration passed over the crowd which was present at the opening football game between the Cardinals and Co. B., of Washington Barracks, when the home boys carried the Army of Uncle Sam off their feet, with fast team work and heady defensive play.

The game started with the Cardinals receiving the kick, which was caught by McBride, and returned to the center of the field, and after a little exchanging McBride crossed over the line for the first touchdown but failed to kick goal.

In the second period, Nalls and Sutherland, by clever end runs, crossed the goal lines for the second and third touchdown, and Sutherland kicked a goal making the score stand 19 to 0. Not once during these periods did the engineers threaten to cross the line, Pray, the Army's main stay, being the only soldier to show ability.

The Engineers on the opening of the third period shoved Blair, the star of the army teams in at quarter in hopes of overcoming the lead, but this move was blocked by the entrance of the "Cardinals Wrecking Crew" which circled end smashed the line and pulled off a forward pass and blocked every move the soldiers boys made showing themselves to be the masters of the game, as they scored 5 touchdowns and kicked three goals, bringing the total points up to 52.

The next game will be with the Seamen Gunners,or Trinity A. C. Both games are pendng.

Rev. William J. Morton, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, returned on Friday after a two months' trip to Europe, and occupied his pulpit yesterday morning.

NEGRO PLEADS GUILTY.

Will Serve One Year in the Penitentiary for Housebreaking and Robbery.

During the early summer the residence of the late Edgar Snowden on South Lee street, was broken open and several articles, including a graphophone, were taken thereform. A negro named Berkley was arrested, charged with committing the crime, the charge having been made by a negro named Charles Lewis. An investigation of the case was made by Justice Thompson at the office of Robinson Moncure at night when the evidence was of a nature as to cause the justice to dismiss Berkley and send Lewis, the informer, on to the grand jury. Lewis was to have faced trial in the Corporation Court, but today he saved the State the expense of a trial by pleading guilty as indicted and was sentenced to serve one year in the penitentiary.

TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE.

Efforts to Arouse Interest in Fairfax in Road Improvement.

Meetings are being arranged in every precinct of the Mt. Vernon District, Fairfax county, to be held two or three times a week between now and November 4th, for the purpose of arousing interest in the election to be held on November 4th, when the people of that district will vote on a bond issue of $90,000 for the purpose of improving 31 miles of roadway leading south of Alexandria.

A number of property owners in the district, who are greatly interested in seeing the bond issue approved, have organized a committee with Malcolm Maclean as chairman and an active campaign has been commenced to place the advantages of good roads before the residents in the endeavor to secure their support for the bond issue.

If the bond issue passes practically all of the roads between Alexandria Mt. Vernon and Accotink, will be improved with modern macadam road beds and will form a part of the highway between Washington and Richmond.

St. Julian Wilson, of Richmond, State Highway Commissioner, has agreed to come to Fairfax and address a big public meeting to be held a few days previous to the election at the school house near Potter's Hill.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Owen Evans, employed at the Potomac Railroad yards, had a narrow escape from serious injury, if not death near the Armour ice plant last Saturday afternoon. He attempted to board a passing locomotive by seizing one of the hand grips when to his horror he found one of his feet was wedged in a switch. Holding on with all his strength he managed to free his foot, and was dragged nearly half a square by the locomotive the rods of which were in motion within a few inches of his limbs.

CHEAPER MEAT NOT IN SIGHT

Assertion That Public Abattoirs Would Solve the Problem.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS.

Exports From Other Countries Not Likely to Bring More Satisfactory Conditions.

Washington Oct. 13.—The establishment of public abattoirs and the sale of meats through public markets are suggested by the Department of Agriculture to relieve the present shortage of meat. The department's experts can see no possibility of relief through importations of beef from Canada, Mexico, Argentinea or any other country. Prices, in their opinion, are bound to continue upward unless improved methods are adapted by the meat producers in the United States.

Through the public houses suggested b ythe department, it is asserted that many middlemen would be eliminated, and local markets would be created for the small farmers who might raise cattle. Another remedy lies in more economic methods of stock raising, and converting of the waste lands into pastures.

Commenting on the decline in beef production, James M. Perkins, of the United States Bureau o fAnimal Indusctry, says: "The decline is shown in three different ways—the number of cattle on hand, the number received in market and number slaughtered. In the last six years the number of beef cattle has fallen off 30 per cent. The receipts of cattle at six of the principal live stock markets for the first nine months of this year were very slightly in excess of the receipts for the same period in 1912 but in comparison with 1911 there was a decrease of nearly 10 per cent.

The decline in the slaughter of beef under government inspection has been steady since 1910, the total falling off amounting to over 8,000,000 carcasses, equivalent to about 450,000,000 pounds of dressed beef. Applying the ratio of Federal inspected slaughter to total slaughter brings the total decrease to 780,000,000 pounds of beef in the entire slaughter of the country from 1910 to 1913."

GIVES UP BRIDE OF HOUR.

Surrenders to Her Parents' Wishes and Aids in Getting Divorce.

Atlanta, Oct. 13.—One hour after Robert A. Harper, a prominent young business man of Atlanta, and Miss Bertha Dickenson, a society bud, were married, the groom surrendered the bride forever at the request of her parents.

Miss Dickenson's parents learned of the wedding immediately and summoned the bride and groom to a conference.

Harper said at the conference he learned things which convinced him that he and Miss Dickenson ought not to have married. "We loved each other devotedly," he said, "but I was convinced that it was for her happiness to give her up and so I consented to surrender her one hour after we were married."

BEGINNING OF THE END IN SULZER CASE

AWAITING VERDICT.

Many Senators in Doubt as to Legality of Certain Procedures in the Impeachment.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The beginnig of the end of New York's political tragedy came today. With the reassembling of the high court of impeachment, only legal questions and its verdict remained to be settled. While Governor Sulzer will probably not know his fate until tomorrow, it will be possible today to get a line on his supporters in the court.

For decision today was the question whether the impeachment articles charging high crimes and misdemeanors between his election and taking the oath of office were legal. There is a serious question in the minds of many Senators on this point. But as a majority vote only is needed to decide this question, the Sulzer leaders were none too confident of having the articles thrown out. They hoped that they could muster more than one-third of the court on their side. This, they said, would be a moral victory, and might aid them when the balloting for the verdict takes place.

It was generally accepted that the debate on this new point would consume most of today's session.

Politicians who have closely followed the trial give him not to exceed thirteen votes and he must have twenty to prevent a guilty verdict. The first vote will be cast by Senator Argetsinger, Republican, from Monroe county. The second vote comes from Judge Willard Bartlett, who is the Democratic candidate for chief judge of the court of appeals. Both are expected to render opinions with their votes which will be very important.

Chief Judge Cullen votes thirteenth and the superstitious see an evil omen in the fact that Sulzer was impeached at 5:13 in the morning, on August 13, and is now facing a final verdict on October 13.

SAD END OF OUTING

Son of U. S. Commissioner Claxton Dies at Alexandria Hospital

The body of Robert B. Claxton, ten-year-old son of Philander P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, who was taken suddenly ill on a launch, "Rosalie," coming up the river last night, and died shortly after reaching the Alexandria Hospital, will be taken to Tabo, N. C., tonight for burial. Funeral services will be held tomorrow. Dr. and Mrs. Claxton will accompany the remains.

The boy suffered an acute attack of indigestion, but it is believed the direct cause of death was inhalation of gasolene fumes in the cabin.

Dr. Claxton said today, that his son had complained of feeling ill, although he had eaten a quantity of fruit and other food during the day's outing. Shortly after dark young Claxton left the others sitting on deck and went to the cabin. Half an hour later his father, thinking probably he had gone to sleep, went to the cabin, but found the door locked. This alarmed him, and he rapped on the window, but failed to get a response. The door was forced, and the boy was found unconscious.

The launch was nearly to this city where it put in and the boy taken to the Alexandria Hospital in an automobile.

Drs. Walter A. Warfield and Samuel B. Moore at once gave treatment, but it was stated that life was practically extinct when the hospital was reached. The body was removed to Demaine's undertaking establishment, and Mr. Claxton and the other members of the party proceeded to Washington by automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Claxton were nearly prostrated when informed that their son was beyond relief.

Dr. and Mrs. Claxton and their two sons, Robert and Porter, and their daughters, Elizabeth and Helen, had spent the day down the river as the guests of John R. Hendley, owner of the launch Rosalie. Mrs. Hendley and Miss Ida Johnston, a nece of Mrs. Claxton, were also in the party. They left Washington early in the morning and went as far as Gunston Cove, where they anchored.

SLAYER STILL AT LARGE

Hampton Returns to City Saturday Night, But Manages to Elude Police

That Robert Hampton, the negro being sought by the police in connection with the murder of Amos Robinson, a negro, at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon at Washington and Jefferson streets, is in hiding in or near this city was indicated Saturday night at the inquest over Robeinson's body. The jury, with James W. Bales, as foreman, returned a verdict to the effect that Robinson came to his death from a pistol shot wound inflicted by Hampton.

Bettie Buckner, at whose house Hampton boarded, told the jury that Hampton returned to the house at 11 o'clock Friday night, while several policemen were on watch in the neighborhood, broke through the kitchen door, and went to his room, where he made a complete change of clothing. She stated that she threw the front door key to the officers from a second-story window, and signaled to indicate that Hampton was within, but that the man hurried out through the rear and disappeared in the bushes. She also declared that he returned to the premises again about 6 o'clock Saturday morning, but did not enter the house.

The witness said Hampton told her he intended to kill two or three other colored men in that vcinity, after which he proposed to give himself up to the police.

That Hampton had planned to kill Robinson was evident from the testimony of the witness, she saying that Sunday last he told her he intended to slay Robinson. He asked for $5, she said, saying he wanted it to purchase a pistol. Hampton told her he proposed to protect himself.

According to witness, Robinson was coming from a store at Jefferson and Columbus streets when he was attacked by Hampton, who called him a name and the shooting followed.

Robinson's remains were buried yesterday afternoon.

KILLED NEGRO FOOTPAD.

White Man Has Thrilling Struggle With Highwayman.

Richmond, Oct. 13.—In a death grapple with a negro highwayman, with his wife a helpless witness to the struggle, Robert O. Bell, president of the Bell Book and Stationery Company, shot and killed his assailant at 10:30 o'clock Friday night on Sherwood Avenue, just after they left the State Fair Grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell, who live in Ginter Park, were on their way home, and were about a quarter of a mile from the northeastern gates of the Fair Grounds, in a lonely spot of the road encompassed with dense undergrowth and trees on either side.

The negro sprang suddenly upon them from behind a tree, and shouting, "Don't go a step further; don't go a step further," presented a revolver Mr. Bell pushed his wife back screaming, and reaching his hand back to his right hip pocket, in which he carried a .32-calibre revolver. Mr. Bell also backed away, trying to avoid the onrush of the negro. The latter pursued, and the two men grappled. They fought and struggled on the side of the lonely road, while Mrs. Bell's terrified screams rang out so that they were heard far back in the Fair Grounds by two policemen patrolling near the Midway.

Mr. Bell was forced back into the honeysuckle vines and long grass growing alongside the road, and tripped and fell, with the negro on top of him. A "Teddy bear" he was carrying home to one of his children was dropped, and fell in the ditch.

But at length he got his revolver, and managed to draw it from his pocket as the robber had him by the throat. As the pistol rubbed against his forehead Mr. Bell pressed his revolver against the body of the negro and fired. The negro's revolver exploded at the same time, but the bullet missed its mark, and Mr. Bell was untouched.

With a loud shout that sounded above the cries of the fear-stricken woman standing by, the robber leaped to his feet and sprang out into the darkness. Bullets sped after him, Standing on the roadside, Mr. Bell, bleeding from cuts received in the struggle, emptied his gun in the direction of the fugitive. Then he ran to his wife's side and when Policemen E. L. Kidd and Louis Bertucci, of the city department, arrived, he was trying to soothe her.

After a search that lasted ten minutes, the two officers found the negro lying with his head on his arms about 200 yards from the road. He had fallen in a ditch, with his hat beneath his body. He was still living when the officers found him, and was groaning out what they took to be a prayer. They dragged him back to the road and laid him down, near the foot of a tree, where he died.

Stanley J. Smith, fifteen, and Joseph Jenkenky, seventeen, of Brooklyn, smashed open a switch on the Lehigh and Hudson River railroad near McAfee, N. J., and sent a fast freight train into a sand pit. Frank Wallace, the fireman, jumped and was insantly killed. The boys were lodged in the county jail at Newton, where they made a full confession. A train following the freight was flagged in time to prevent it crashing into the wreck.

HOW TO BUILD UP THE COMMONWEALTH.

The second award in the competition by members of the Virginia Press Association for prizes of $150 in gold for the three best articles on "How to Build up the Commonwealth" went to C. B. Camper, editor of the Fincastle Herald. Mr. Camper's article was as follows:

"Aside from the religious, moral and social conditions of the people of Virginia, the subject of first importance is "How to Build Up the Commonwealth."

"This subject has been discussed for decades past; but the fact that it is still a vital one discloses the issue as remaining unsolved. With a geographical position unsurpassed; a climate to challenge the most favored sections of the world; a soil capable of sustaining many millions of population; a social condition unrivaled; a homogeneous people of pure Anglo-Saxon strain, the fact still stands out in bold relief, notwithstanding this splendid combination of conditions and forces, that we are evidently lagging behind the busy world in the matter of material wealth and comfort, and, in consequence, paying the penalty in the innumerable ramifications and channels of our daily life.

"And yet the basis for this condition and the remedy are closely related and are of the simplest complexion. In its last analysis, it may be said that the use of modern methods, developed by science and approved by practice, have found insufficient practical favor among the masses of the people. This is especially true as to our agricultural interests, and as these form the basis for all substantial advance and improvement in almost every conceivable line of business endeavor, it follows that the basis upon which we must build our future prosperity, in order "to build up the commonwealth," is weak in structure and especially lacking in force.

"In plain terms, the basis for all our prosperity, involving directly the activities of three-fourths of our people, lies on a substructure confessedly "behind the times." To the intelligent citizen this statement cannot be controverted, though it should not be regarded as a reflection, because the existing conditions are the result of environment and forces that have been difficult to overcome. In our beloved State we are not cultivating the soil with the forked stick and the ox, as is done in other parts of the world. Neither are we using the steam plow and other modern machinery. Our methods are relatively midway between the former and the latter, and our material condition fairly corresponds with the middle condition here indicated. Reduced to its last analysis the position we hold in the world by comparison with more wealthy portions of our country is the lack of education in its broadest sense. We do not know how, because we have not been taught.

"We have no just conception of the producing capacity of our lands. While the farmer in France, or England, Germany, in far-away Japan, and even in our Northern States, may acquire a competence on ten acres of ground, rearing and educating a family, many of our farmers delve without substantial results on broad acres, maintain a steady horizon of agricultural slavery, and hold the remainder of the population to a relatively indigent condition. These plain facts, necessarily condensed in statement, are generally recognized as true; but there has been no fixed and steadfast determination to strike steadily at the root of the evil. We have been too complaisant and satisfied; but the time is now here when we must move forward, or our position in the sisterhood of States and among the nations of the world will become one of profound reproach to us, a condition of apparent retrogression, while the world around us moves on with the steady and virile stride of a giant "refreshed with new wine."

"And the remedy—education, the disseminstion of the knowledge of what the world is doing and what we may do. We must educate the great mass of the people that they occupy a land that may be made "to flow with milk and honey;" a goodly land—a mine of wealth, from which may be easily dug fortunes; a heritage greater than any similar area on the face of the globe. Our public schools are not doing this great work, the pulpit is not doing it, and the press has been somewhat neglectful along the same line.

And just here comes the exceeding appropriateness of the discussion of this subject before the Press Association of our State. Our great power should be united as one man in this plan of education. The problem is simple, the subject may be a homely one, especially when iterated and reiterated with the persistency necessary to produce substantial results. But it is our duty. The argument that we are editors, and not cultivators of the soil, cannot avail, for the reason that we, more than any other class of citizens, are on the watch towers and catch the first glimpses of power that science is projecting into every avenue of human endeavor. We must be the purveyors of that knowledge to the great body of the people first, and most directly concerned; not incidentally nor spasmodically, but with a power and persistency that must bring immediate results.

"We may discuss the tariff, the currency question, our foreign relations, current literature, current events, and give our readers all the news of the day; that is one of our special provinces; but the issue that most nearly concerns our welfare is the rescue of our people from their relative state of poverty to the full measure of prosperity that their God-given natural advantages entitled them to. Virginia sends annually millions of dollars from the State for agricultural products that should be grown within her borders, and an immense balance of trade is thus established against her. Let this condition be reversed, and within a few years the question how to build up our Commonwealth will be most effectively answered. This can be done. It has not been done, because our people did not know how to do it. The press of Virginia can show the way. The Federal and the State governments have only recently combined to lead the people "out of the wilderness." They have adopted "demonstration" method, simple and practical, to directly apply by personal instruction the cogent facts that science has developed. What an immense volume of influence the press may exert in disseminating this practical and necessary knowledge! United, it would be irresistible.

"The sources of information to carry on the campaign here indicated are ready at our hand, in the State and Federal departments of agriculture, in the progressive class magazines, and, substantially, in the exchanges of every newspaper office. So far as the great mass of the people is concerned, this knowledge is a sealed book. Can we not open this book—and will we not agree to do it?"

THE 8TH DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL.

Few people in Alexandria realize the splendid work that is being done in the Eighth Congressional District High School which is located in Manassas, or even know that Alexandria pupils are admitted to this institution without charge for tuition. This school is one of the ten congressional district high schools with state appropriations for agricultural and manual work.

The following are the courses taught:

Agricultural Manual Training and Domestic Science Courses. The four-year agricultural course fits for practical farming, or for entrance to any agricultural college. The two-year domestic science course includes household sanitation, the chemistry of foods and much practice in practical cooking. A course in manual training and shop work is given in the first year.

Agricultural Extension Work. A large body of work is also conducted by the High School through its various extension agencies, the Farmers' Institute, Woman's Home Economic Club, Boy's Corn Club and Girl's Canning Club. Demonstrations and exhibits of the work of these organizations are made, and prominent scientific lecturers address the meetings.

Academic or College Preparatory Course. The standards of work of the general College Entrance Examination Board are maintained, and completion of this course gives entrance credit to the University of Virginia, Cornell University and other institutions of similar rank.

Normal Training Course. This calls for three years of high school work and one year of normal training. Teachers holding first or second grade certificates may enter for the year of normal training only, if desired. Observation work is given not only in the adjacent graded and rural schools, but also in the schools of Washington. The normal department is in charge of a graduate of Teachers' College, Columbia University.

The athletic work of the school is supported by a student's league. Trained instruction and supervision are given.

There are good library, laboratory and shop facilities. Circulars will be sent on request.

HELPLESS AS BABY

Down in Mind Unable to Work, and What Helped Her.

Summit Point, W. Va.—Mrs. Anna Belle Emery, of this place, says: "I suffered for 15 years with an awful pain in my right side, caused from woman's trouble, and doctored lots for it, but without success. I suffered so very much that I became down in mind, and as helpless as a baby. I was in the worst kind of shape. Was unable to do any work.

I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and got relief from the very first dose. By the time I had taken 12 bottles, my health was completely restored. I am now 48 years years old, but feel as good as I did when only 16.

Cardui certainly saved me from losing my mind, and I feel it my duty to speak in its favor. I wish I had some power over poor, suffering women, and could make them know the good it would do them."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, it will certainly be worth your while to give Cardui a trial. It has been helping weak women for more than 50 years, and will help you too.

Try Cardui. Your druggist sells it.

YOUR HAIR IS TURNING GREY AND IT MAKES YOU LOOK OL

This is Not the Time When Old Age is to be Desired

TO KEEP POPULAR KEEP YOUR APPEARANCE OF YOUTH

A young man was surprised to have his application for a position "turned down." He was better equipped for the position than the fellow who got it.

He discovered that his grey hairs did it. He was "too old" looking. It's the same everywhere. There is no doubt but that grey hair does make a man look old. There is no use waiting another minute—don't lose your position or fail in getting a better one because you are old looking—use Hay's Hair Health now.

Those who are using Hay's Hair Health recommend it to their friends because it is genuinely good, always restores grey hair to its natural color, destroys dandruff, keeps the scalp clean and healthy. You begin to note the difference at once. The few grey hairs disappear and never return.

Why look old when you are young? Get a bottle of Hay's Hair Health at once, start using it and see what a difference a few applications make.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Frederick S. Knisely, a bookkeeper, shot and killed his father, Thomas J. Knisely, a wealthy and well-known politician, late Saturday afternoon at Clarksburg, W. Va., and was exonerated by a coroner's jury. The shooting took place at Lost Creek, and resulted when the elder Knisely is alleged to have attacked his son and daughter with a butcher knife.

One hundred clews have been run down and all found worthless in the Florence Brown mystery according to a statement by Chief of Detectives Henry Tanner, of Dallas, Tex. Miss Brown, a church choir singer and prominent Y. W. C. A. worker, was found dead, with her throat cut, in her uncle's real estate office, at Dallas, at 9 a. m., July 28th last. Miss Brown, 26 years old, rather handsome, was stenographer and confidential agent for her uncle, Jeff Robinson, of the firm of Robinson and Styron.

While flying in a biplane from Hempstead Plains, Long Island, to the aerodrome at Oakwood Heights, yesterday afternoon, Capt. William Walb got into difficulties when over New York Bay, and fell with his machine a distance of 500 feet into the water, except for shock, due to submersion. The biplane was wracked. The aviator, who is said to be a former officer of the Getrman army, was making the trip to Oakwood Heights to take part in the aeroplane race around Manhattan Island tomorrow.

Wm. Larry, wealthy merchant and farmer, living near Urbanna, Ill. elated over the sales og a Ferris building site for $12,000 exhibited a roll of money, containing $1,200 in a shoe shop, with a boast that he was going to the country to collect $1,200 more yesterday. This morning his body was found in a cornfield near the house where he had collected the money. He had been shot in the head three times and robbed.

Believed to be suffering from religious mania, Joseph Bakszrafki attacked his boarding house mistress Mrs. Joseph Zionski, in her home Jersey City. She fled and he hurled her 11-months old child, Theresa Zionski, from a window. The child died. Raksrzafki was held on a charge of murder.

As a result of a fire panic in a synagogue of Cholojow, Galicia sixteen women are dead and many others are ina serious condition. The panic happened during the Day of Atonement services.

Two young women and a man gave their lives by hanging suspended over Pickering Creek from the top of a trestle, on the Frazer branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, when caught by a train as they were in the middle of the long struture yesterday near Phoenxville, Pa. Harry Sauers of Charlestown township, raised his head while the train was passing and received a severe scalp wound. Miss Elizabeth Walton and Miss Winfred Sauers, also of Charlestown, were content to hang from the ends of the ties without watching the train, and were not scratched. After Sauers was hurt he was in danger of dropping off, but the two girls kept encouraging him to hang on. When the train had passed they quickly climbed up on the trestle and drew Sauers to safety. The engineer had seen the escape of the party and backed the arain to the trestle and brought the injured man and two young women to Pittsburgh.

Representative Hebrews of Washington met last night at the Eighth street temple in one of the greatest mass meetings ever assembled in the Washington capital, and protested against the accusations that are being made in Kief, Russia, in the trial of Mendal Belis, a Jew, who is alleged to have murdered a Christian boy, Andrew Yushinsky, in order to obtain blood to be used in the religious service of the Passover.

Henry W. Judd, wealthy retired business man and director in several Cleveland, O., corporations,was scalded to death in his bathtub yesterday His body was found several hours later by his wife on her return from church. His bath had been prepared by a colored maid, and it is supposed that he fell into the bath tub and was unable, because of his enfeebled condition, to climb out.

Miss Rowena McDonald and her half-sister, Miss Sallie Hunsley, probably owe their lives to a bull dog which awoke them when a burglar set fire to the house about 1 o'clock yesterday morning, by lighting a match which ignited a curtain. A year ago the dog saved the house from being flooded by taking Miss McDonald to a bath room, where the water was turned on.

CHANGE IN THE WEATHER.

Warm Wave of Last Week Passes Away Saturday Night.

Between eleven and 12 o'clok Saturday night the wind, which had been from the east nearly all the week, bringing a warm wave to this vicinity changed to the north and for a time "blew great guns". There was copius showers of rain and the temperature fell considerable before morning. Shingles were blown from some roofs and branches torn from trees by the wind. No serious damage is reported, however.

Bracing fall weather with generally fair skies is promised the greater part of the country for the coming week by the Weather Bureau.

"Tempeatures wil laverage near or below normal and precipitation will be generally ligh and local except in the North Pacific States. where rains will be frequent" the weekly bulletin says. "The next disturbance to cross the country will appear in the Far West Tuesday or Wednesday, cross the Middle West about Thursday and the Eastern States Friday or Saturday; this disturbance will be attended by rains and be preceded by a general rise in temperature; it will be followed by considerably colder weather, which will make its appearance in the Northwest about Wednesday

TO DREDGE CHANNEL.

Material to be Placed on Virginia Shore North of Highway Bridge.

Bids for dredging the Virginia channel of the Potomac river from the Highway bridge to Georgetown so as to give a depth of twenty-one feet below mean low tide will be opened tomorrow at noon in the office of Lieut. Col. W. C. Langfitt, engineer officer in charge of the Potomac channels, in the Southern building. It is expected that dredging operations on the channel will be started the latter part of November.

The specifications state that about 450,000 cubic yards of material, consisting of mud and sand deposited by freshets, are to be removed.

The portion of the channel to be deepened is 6,000 feet long, 400 feet wide and extends from the Highway bridge to opposite the foot of west 26th street.

The excavated material is to be deposited behind the dyke wall recently constructed along the Virginia side of the channel or on the marsh lying along the Rosslyn branch of the P., B. & W. R. R., under the Arlington hills.

It has been about five years since the Georgetown channel was deepened, and when the dredge completed the work at that time there was twenty-one feet of water in the channel on a low tide. Since that time the channel has filled in places nearly five feet and along its entire length the fill has been from two to three feet. Coal laden barges drawing seventeen feet of water could only be brought out from Georgetown on high water during the past season, and then the tugs towing them would have to pull them through the mud. The worst of the shoaling has taken place abreast the foot of 17th street, and soundings made there on an ordinary tide show but about sixteen feet of water. It is here that the barges have the most trouble in coming out from the Georgetown piers.
